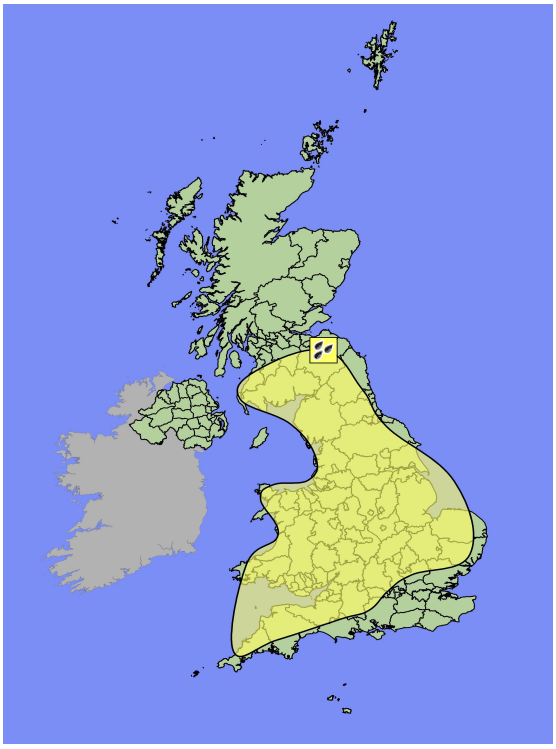
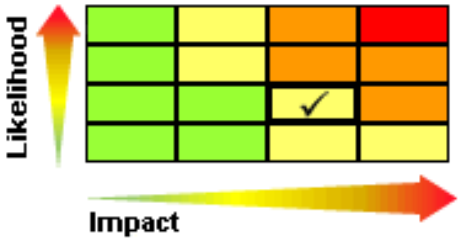
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
An area of low pressure will move slowly northeast from southwest England through Sunday. Some heavy and locally thundery downpours are expected: these more likely through the afternoon and evening although at this stage precise locations are uncertain. There is a high risk of 15 mm falling in one hour in places, with a few locations receiving over 40 mm in a 3 hour period.

Please refer to this website for further updates.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 10:00 on Sun, 05th Aug 2012 until 22:00 on Sun, 05th Aug 2012

Heavy and thundery showers, which may be prolonged in places, are expected to develop through Sunday. The public should be aware of the risk of localised surface water flooding and more widespread, though intermittent, difficult driving conditions.
